Today we had a parliamentary discussion

At first, Palko, the president of parliament started the conversation. We had 5 topics. The first question was: "Can a teacher shout at the students?". We think that the Portuguese had better arguments. The second was about Anna moving to a new house and having to change her school. She had a wheelchair, and she couldn't enter the house. Finland and Turkey were the two teams, and they were equally good. Then there was another topic: Tamara was a little girl, who didn't talk much, but she uploaded photos in the internet . We think that Portugal was the best team. The fourth talked about the time when Thomas and John threatened their classmates. The Romanian team wasn't better than the Finnish team. Pippa's problem had to do with her parents' divorce. She wanted to see her dad more.
